Terrific Batting Gives Detroit a Game, The Indianapolis club yesterday received its first decisive defeat of the season at the hands of the champion Detroits. The latter took one of their famous batting streaks, which tells the history of the entire game. They earned all of their thirteen runs, showing that the home team did some exceptional fielding in the face of such heavy batting. With the exception of the first, second and eighth innings Shreve pitched with excellent effect, but he was unmercifully hammered in the two opening innings. Both teams did some beautiful fielding, and nothing could have been prettier than the exhibition of batting by the visitors. The only thing that marred the game was its one-sidedness. Denny's work at short was brilliant, and Captain Hanlon did some excellent work in the outfield, one of his catches in the ninth inning being of the phenomenal order. Gauzell caught a great game, saving Conway a number of wild pitches, and preventing two or three runs from coming in. He also captured a number of difficult foul tips. Buckley caught well, as he always does. His only error was a misjudged foul fly. Brouthers did some good fielding for the visitors. The feature of the game which was most appreciated by the crowd was the great batting of big Sam Thompson. A crowd of Thompson's friends from Danville was down, and they cheered his two terrific home-run drives. When he sent the second one over the fence far down in center, the Danvillians shouted, "Hurrah for Danville," and somebody in another part of the park, not to be outdone, yelled "Hurrah for Indiana." The home team failed to bat Conway with the readiness that they anticipated doing, or with the success that they had with him last year. This was partly due, no doubt, to the long lead which the visitors obtained early in the game, which encouraged Conway and discouraged the home players. The only run made by the home team was by Bassett in the seventh inning, when he made what was almost equivalent to a hit to right field, Thompson getting his hands on the ball when up against the fence. Bassett has certainly been doing a great deal of Bassett has certainly been doing a great deal of timely batting this year for a player who is not considered a heavy hitter.

The day was cloudy and cold, and not over six or seven hundred people saw the game, the crowd being the smallest since the season opened. The ground, however, was in better condition than the spectators expected to find it. It was a little slippery in certain places, and Hines, the very first batter to step to the plate, would have reached first base but for having would have reached first base but for having slipped and fallen after hitting the ball. The home players all wore crape in respect to the memory of Pitcher Ferguson, of the Philadelphies, who had died the previous day.

After the home team had been retired in the first inning the Detroits immediately began a fusillade on the Indianapolis pitcher; Richardson got a single, Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Board Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson and Brouthers and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson and Brouthers and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a ball and Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson and Brouthers and Brouthers a base on ball and Brouthers a ball an got a single, Brouthers a base on balls, Thompson a single, and Rowe a home drive over the right-field fence. This made four runs, with no one out, and then White hit for a single and Twitchell achieved a base on balls, and still no outs. Buckley made one of his quick attempts to catch Twitchell napping at first base, but the ball hit the runner on the head. The play advanced White to third base and laid Twitchell out for a few moments, but, after reviving, he made an effort to steal second, and was put out by the lively work of Buckley and Denny. Then the next two batters went out, leaving White on

The home team started off well in the next inning. Seery, the best runner in the team, was inning. Seery, the best runner in the team, was the first man at the bat, and he got a base on balls. Then Esterbrook, who has not yet made a timely hit this season, batted the ball to Rowe, and a double play followed. In the last half of this inning the visitors again set upon Shreve. Conway was given a base on balls, Richardson made a single, Brouthers a three-bagger, Rowe a two-bagger and White and Twitchell singles. A double play brought the inning to a close, Hanlon sending a liner to Hines, who threw to Bassett, and the latter to first, doubling up Twitchell, who had started to second. There was a difference of opinion at this point between Captain Hanlon and umpire Valentine as to whether White's run Valentine as to whether White's run should count, he having crossed the plate before the double play was completed. As the Detroits had a lead of eight to nothing As the Detroits had a lead of eight to nothing the dispute did not wax very warm, about the only thing at stake being a cigar which the disputants bet at the beginning of the controversy. The umpire decided that Hanlon had lost and would not allow him to dispute his decision on this point. The rest of the game was dull and uninteresting except for good fielding feats and for two magnificent home-run drives by Thompson over the center field fence. Bassett went to second on Thompson's excusable error in the second on Thompson's excusable error in the seventh, to third on an error by White off of Buckley's lively grounder and home while Ganzell was throwing Buckley out at second.

PITTSBURG, April 30.-Baldwin made a special request to be allowed to pitch against the Pittsburgs again to-day, as he had a grievance to square. His request was granted, but he did not care to continue in the box after the fifth inning, and retired in favor of Ryan. The members of the home team were on their mettle and pounded the ball terrifically for five innings, but after Ryan went in they only got two hits. Morris, who was in fine form, held the Chicagos down to four scattering hits. The feature of the game was the batting and fielding of Fields. Attendance, 1,200. Score:

New York, April 30 .- Kelly won the game for Boston, at the Polo grounds, to-day. Kelly and Clarkson worked hard for the game, and though the Giants outplayed them at every point, they persevered and finally won. Whitney to Play with Detroit. The Detroit club has accepted the terms of Arthur Whitney, who was last year a member of the Pittsburg club. Whitney and the Pittsburg club had not been able to come to terms. and when Manager Watkins was in Pittsburg recently be proposed to buy the third-baseman. and the Pittsburgers named their price. Whitney will be played at third by the Detroits, it ing the intention to make a catcher of White. Whether the latter will serve in that capacity remains to be seen. It is to be presumed that Watkins would not go shead with the deal, however, without knowing how the land But it seems rather queer White, who has not had much experience as a catcher as Rowe, and who is an older man, should be chosen for the position. It is barely possible that Watkins is going ahead with the matter, expecting White to play wherever he is commanded to. In this connection the idea of getting White for the Infianapolis club was again broached last night, but it is not likely that such a deal can be consummated. He would certainly fill the gap which appears to exist at first base. It is not likely that Detroit would release him at anything like a reasonable figure, even if Hackett were offered to them as a part of the deel. A Lowell, Mass., dispatch says that the Pittsburg management exchanged Whitney for pitcher Gruber.

McGeachy Comes to Terms. McGeachy has at last accepted the terms offered him by the Indianapolis club, and yes terday his advance money was forwarded and he was ordered to report at Chicago immediately. He will not arrive there in time to par-ticipate in to-day's game, but will probably play to-morrow. Manager Spence is reticent on the subject, but there is little doubt that McGeachy will occupy right field and that Shomberg will return to first base. Esterbrook does not handle himself like a first baseman; he does not seem to have improved his work. But what has still more discouraging is his falling off in bat-ting since facing League pitchers. Although it is a little early to condemn the man it might be well to try some one else in the position and see if the results are not better. McGeachy is one of the best outfielders in the League and would greatly strengthen the outfield-in fact make it one of the best in the country. One of the leading players in the Detroit team yesterday expressed surprise that Indianapolis did not get McGeachy for the outfield and shift Shomberg back to first base.

Off for Chicago. The Indianapolis club went to Chicago last night and will play there to-day, to-morrow, Thursday and Friday. Moffet was left behind , place were grossly misrepresented by the thi-cago reporters who were with the club, and the ngitation on the subject has been kept up daily ever since. It is hardly probable, however, that Esterbrook will be injured. The Chicago public is too familiar with the ruffianism of Anson and some of his mon to sympathize very heartily with Sullivan, even admitting that the latter was in no way to blame for the fracas.

Our Bose-Ball Literature.

Bill Nye, in New York World. | Iam extremely sorry that Matthew Arnold did not live to read more of our American base-ball literature. I think he would have liked us better if he had done so. In saying that we were a vulgar people and that the American humorist was a national misfortune I think he criticised us hastily, for he was only in this country a little while and judged our homor largely by the supply he read while here and which he brought with him in his trunk, but if he could have seen the base-ball word painting of our giorious country he would have loved us.

It he could have read that Richardson went out, Irwin to Farrar, that Foster hit safely and stole second, that Weich flied out to Wood and all about Tiernan's scratch hit and Ewing's failure to sacrifice and Ward's miss of a grounder that went through him, Mr. Arnold would have said that he had done us an injustice. We do not claim much for our long line of ancestry, and those who came over in the Mayflower try to conceal it as "quietly as possible, but here in this wild and savage land we are trying to build up a classic style of writing up our national game that will make the mother coun-

I admit that I cannot understand it all yet, but I am striving to do so, and I am willing to

I sometimes wish that Lord Tennyson could some here for one summer and sit with me on a bleaching-board, with his numerous hair hangbleaching-board, with his numerous hair hanging over his top-cont, while I explained to him "that it looked rather equally for the Giants, for instance, till Slattery joited merry thunder out of the horse-hide, tore the tar out of the willow, emashed the leather, and then, while the Phillie fumblers were pulling dandelion greens beyond the Harlem, the Metropolitan infielder lit out like future punishment beating tan-bark, accumulated a one-bagger, a two-bagger and a three-bagger, atraightened himself out like a long-waisted jack rabbit across the plate and made his royal red home run just as the New York Central got in with the ball and the band played "Tommy Make Room for Your the band played "Tommy Make Room for Your

I think that Alfred would like that. If me Lord likes a vivid and searching style he would find it here. I am only beginning to write in this way, and it is new to me, but I think I can ultimately give a description of a ball game that will appeal to every heart. When I began I would have said, for instance, that O'Rourke awatted at the ball and missed it, till the pitcher hit O'Rourke's person with it, and then he went to the first, and gradually got to the third base, but now I would say that O'Rourke, the Gothic extended catcher for the Giants, strove to belt the blooming ball to windward, mauled the atmosphere two times, and concussed the life preserver on the right leg of umpire Daniels, was presented with one base as a mark of esteem, and with a blister as big as a hornet's nest where he had tried to bisect the orbit of a hot ball with the bosom of his knickerbockers, he ball with the bosom of his knickerbockers, he bungled a second, and while Hallman was muffing the orb, catching invisible crabs, fluking everything in sight, and corking himself generally, O'Rourke lit out like a scared-to-death bobtail comet, fell forty feet horizontally, and with his ear full of hot ball, a blister across his meridian, a fractured thigh, and his mouth full of sand, hoarsely ejaculated, "Judgment!"

There is a description that appeals to every heart. There is a literary moss again that ought to tickle a man like Tennyson, unless he has a foolish prejudice against American writers.

My ambition is some day to write the lurid description of a base-ball game which will go snorting down the corridors of time, along with Balaklava, Marco Bozzaris and the stubborn youth who stood on the burning deck. I want to write it so that it will be bright and jaunty in style, and yet I would like to sock a little sadness in it, a description that should be rich in coloring, and yet free from information, a carefully and professionally prepared gem of literature that would contain about a column and heart. There is a literary moss agate that ought nothing else whatever.

The London Saturday Review says that "what America wants is a literature that shall smack of the soil." Here is the opportunity. Let the umpire take down the remarks of a Giant who has tried to reach nine feet and catch hold of the third base with his front teeth, and then demand judgment before spitting out the north end of the Polo grounds.

Mesers. Mathison and Tomlinson, the Detroit newspaper representatives, both experienced base-ball writers, said last night, that there was not a particle of doubt that Indianapolis had, in Denny, Glasscock and Bassett, the best infield by twenty-five per cent, that there was in the country, even with a mediocre man at first.

A Boston dispatch to Sporting Life, says: "The Hoosiers are determined to have Radbourne. Some days ago President Soden received a letter from President Brush, of the Innianapolis Club, offering $3,000 for Radbourn's release; the proposition was promptly declined, whereupon the offer was at once increased to $4,000. The second proposition was also declined, and now the offer has been increased to $5,000. The Boston directors have the matter under considera-tion, and that is probably where it will remain."

The Slayer of Miss Wittenburg.

To the Western Associated Press. LAPAYETTE, April 30 .- There is no excitement here over the arrival of Edward Chamberlain, who is alleged to have killed Ida Wittenburg, of Reynolds, Ind., ten days ago, but Sheriff McKee, in consequence of the reports that have been printed of the organization of a mobin White county, to lynch the prisoner, has deemed it prudent to place a number of repeating Winchester rifles in the jail, and have men selected to use them in the event that the unexpected should happen. There is no probability that there will be any attempt, as the mob would have to travel twenty or twenty-five miles to reach here, and the authorities could easily pretect the jail against them. The accused will not talk about the crime, but expresses no fear of a meb. He is understood to have retained Col. Dick De Hart, of this city, to defend him.

His statement is that he was tired of life and assigns this as the cause, but the probable one is that he took his life because of a quarrel with the young lady he was keeping company with. It seems he had been drinking, yesterday afternoon, and while under the influence of liquor called on the young lady, and she refusing to see him, caused him to commit the act.

A Prohibitionist Robbed of His Liquors. KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 30.-Col. D. R. Anthony, editor and principal proprietor of the Leavenworth Times, is the ultra anti-saloon candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Kansas, and has been most bitter for years against those not in love with probibition. Last night thieves broke into the cellar of his handsome house in Leavenworth, and carried off the major portion of its contents. This morning he went below on business, and discovered the raid, and his wrath soon aroused the neighbors. Then it was learned for the first time that the stolen goods consisted of several hundred dollars' worth of the finest bottled wines, flasks of the choicest of whiskies and brandies, and bottles of the best beer. The Prohibition leader did not attempt to conceal his loss, and the matter soon became common gossip. It is likely to ruin the Colonel's chances for the gubernatorial nomination, before this most excellent

She was due at Port Harford, which is 195 miles south of here, and about eleven miles from San Louis Obispo, early this morning. The number of her crew and passengers is not known, but the steamer generally carried a large number of passengers. Church Fight in Dakota. WAPETON. Dak., April 30 .- A row has been brewing in the Methodist Church of this city for several months between the pastor, Rev. B. S. Taylor, and a number of members. It sulminated in a set of resolutions, sanctioned by the presiding elder, denouncing the course of the pastor. In return the pastor is out in newspaper letter denouncing the disaffected portion of his flock as hypocrites, etc. Last week a local paper indulged in a severe roasting of the reverend gentleman. Several ministers of the city devoted portions of their morning service, yesterday, in pointing out the moral.

Bicycle Patents in Dispute. CHICAGO, April 30 .- The Pope Manufacturing Company, owners of the patents on the construction of bicycles and tricycles, was defeated to-day in its legal fight with its licensees, Judge Blodgett, in the federal court, dismissing all the Pope Company's bills without reservation of acy kind. There were five suits, all directed, ostendibly, in different forms, against R. Phillip Gormully and Thomas B. Jeffery. The Pope company contended that the licensees were forever estopped by their agreement, which, in other respects, terminated in 1886, from disputing the validity of the Pope patents, and from manufacturing goods containing features for which the Pope company held expired patents, but under which the defendants were not licensed. It was asserted that the licensees infringed each and all of the Pope patents in the construction of machines, and a restraining injunction was asked for. This was denied by Judge Blodgett, who decided every point in all the cases adverse to the Pope Manufacturing Company. The latter took an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Great Fire in the Oil Region. EAST BRADFORD, Pa., April 30.-Forest fires have been raging in the Kene oil field since Sunday afternoon. They were started by a spark from a locomotive. Carpenter's large raw-mills at the Lodge were also consumed. The fire burned incessantly until 8 o'clock this evening, when a heavy rain checked the progress of the flames and the fire is now under control. The loss cannot be estimated. but will be very heavy. It is the worst fire in the history of the oil country. Mangled by an Enraged Stallion. WICHITA, Kan., April 30.-William J. Johnston, a stockman living south of this city, was yesterday fatally mangled by a vicious stallion.
